Prepare to Lead in a Global Environment

Salve Regina's graduate program in business administration prepares professionals to successfully lead and manage within today's ever-evolving and increasingly global business environment. It is ideal for students seeking career advancement in fields that demand strong quantitative skills, such as accounting, finance and financial management.

In both the for-profit and not-for-profit environments, today's executive is faced with a myriad of concerns ranging from ethical and human rights issues to globalization and environmental protection. The Salve Regina University business administration curriculum provides the technical knowledge and skills to appreciate and address these and other critical contemporary issues. The program is directed toward developing leaders with a focus on ethics, organizational behavior, finance, economics, accounting and strategic management. Social purpose and workplace humanization are underlying program values aligned with the University's mission to work for a world that is harmonious, just and merciful.

Salve Regina University's MBA program is accredited by the International Accreditation Council for Business Education (IACBE).

Concentrations

Elective courses may be combined into an area of concentration (minimum of 9 credits required). The following concentrations are available:

Cyber Security Issues in Business

The concentration in cyber security issues in business addresses the cyber threats that face many organizations. Awareness of threats and managing risks work to decrease vulnerabilities and exposure that left unchecked, may damage an organization's brand, credibility and value.

Nonprofit Management

This concentration focuses on administrative positions in nonprofit fields such as health care, education, social welfare, labor unions, museums, historic sites, libraries and fraternal, professional, performing arts, environmental and cemetery organizations.

Social Ventures

Social ventures are business units focused on providing social benefit and solutions to social problems. For-profit or not-for-profit, the focus is on providing positive impact on social issues in a sustainable manner.

Entrepreneurial Enterprise

Students in the entrepreneurial enterprise concentration complete courses designed to develop creative thinking, opportunity analysis and support, business plan development and strategic planning.

Health Care Administration and Management

Students who concentrate in health care administration and management complete health care-specific courses in marketing, law, ethics, health policy and finance.
