Connect with the Human Community

The 48-credit holistic counseling program is designed to prepare professional counselors with a variety of counseling skills that includes a holistic approach to their work. Consonant with the mission of the University, the program seeks to help students learn and understand how to observe, evaluate, and incorporate the integration of body, mind, and spirit into their lives. Holistic counselors in training are presented with the idea that personal and system wholeness depends upon connectedness with the human community and with the natural world that supports it.

The coursework requires students to take a developmental, holistic, and social justice perspective in the work they do. Students are required to engage in all learning activities in ways that are consistent with the current professional and ethical standards of the American Counseling Association (ACA) and other related professional certification bodies.

Students within this program complete academic courses and 150 hours of supervised clinical practice. Upon completion of this degree, students may apply for the Certificate in Advance Graduate Studies (CAGS) in Clinical Mental Health: Concentration in Holistic Counseling. Students within the 48-credit track must review current state requirements to ensure eligibility.
